Q3. The following schematic had been followed as shown in the figure. Padding is not required in the implementation as in the corner , the window/patch size had been decreased.

The code is taking too much time to run(even after undersampling by 2). So I ran the code individually for a particular sigma. Although running for different sigma can be easily done just by putting the sigma values in the loop and calling the function multiple times.